

THIS Boomerang fighter plane may not be able to fly . . .

But these Commonwealth Aircraft Corporation apprentices, who restored the plane, yesterday showed the Boomerang was as strong as the day it was completed in 1943.

True to its namesake, the Boomerang came back yesterday . . . to the RAAF, where it began its career as a patrol and formation flier and fighter trainer.

The plane was handed over to the RAAF by the CAC apprentices who have taken three years to restore it.

The presentation was timed to coincide with the release of an Australia Post stamp issue which features four CAC aircraft, including the Boomerang.
