

AT an RAAF Operational Training Unit in NSW, Air Force flying personnel are being trained to fly Mosquito aircraft, which have been in production in Australia for some time. Airmen who are undergoing conversion courses on the Mosquito are all proved flyers who have served in operational theatres. On the instructional staff of the unit there are more decorated men than on any other RAAF station. Picture shows Mosquitos lined up ready for the day's work. 1944

BRISBANE PAPER