

LEAVES SKYWAYS FOR CARAVAN HIGH ROADS

Here is the City of Hereford, a veteran Dakota flown more than half a million miles by pilots of 300 Wing R.A.A.F. Transport Command during the New Guinea campaigns, now being made into a luxury Caravan.

During her active service she carried wounded, paratroops, infantry, food, guns, ammunition, trucks, bridging equipment, and the hundred and one things that made possible the victories in New Guinea. Her next trip will be behind a light car owned by Mr. Max Muller, of the Grange, as a family caravan with every convenience.

Some months ago Mr. Muller obtained the City of Hereford's fuselage from a friend who purchased the plane from Disposals. Now it lies in Mr. Muller's backyard in three sections. The forward section, including the pilots' control cabin, has been transformed into a roomy caravan. There is 100 square feet of floor space in the section.

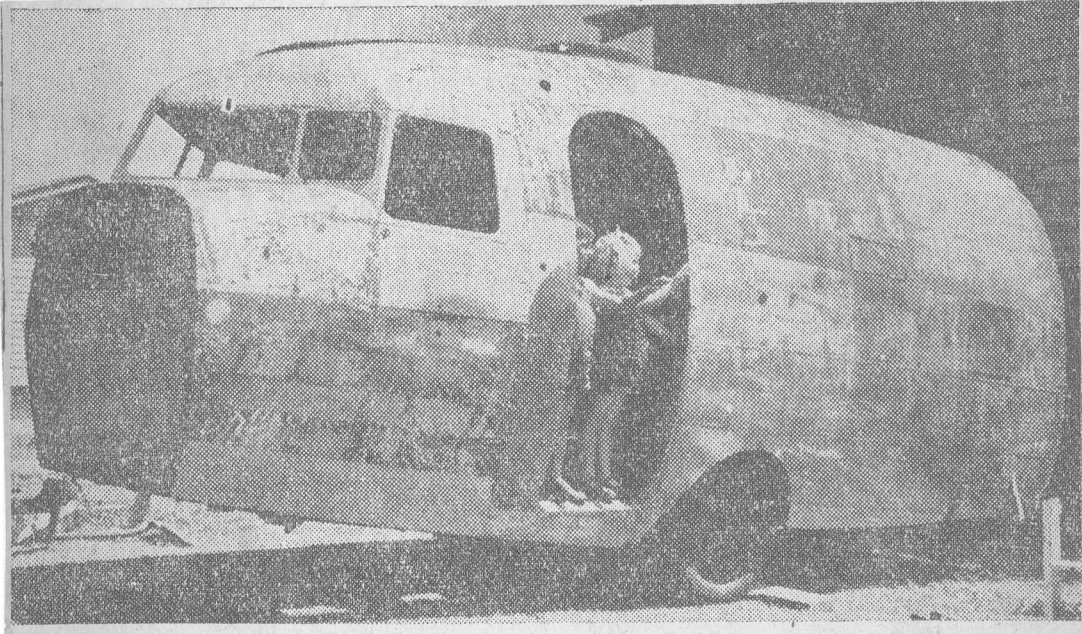

Mr. Muller, a city business man, builds the caravan in his spare time. When completed it will weigh about half a ton. Fittings will include: A double bed, 2 single beds, table and four chairs, sink, ice chest, and two wardrobes.

The single beds are for Mr. Muller's two young children, and will be fitted one above the other. The double bed will fold into a settee during the daytime.

★ EVEN after it has been scrapped this Dakota plane is serving a very useful purpose. As an R.A.A.F. bomber it carried out many operational flights in the Pacific area. When its usefulness officially was over, it was acquired by Mr Max Muller, of the Grange, and has been converted into a very roomy and comfortable caravan. It will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Muller and their two children at Mooloolaba during the Christmas vacation.
